

Te Kura Kairūri School of Surveying Lunchtime Seminar Series

What makes a good street?

Jeanette Ward, Technical Director, Transportation Engineering, Abley

Designing a street involves a multi-disciplinary approach, surveyors are often part of that process, particularly in the greenfield context. This talk will outline what a good design process looks like and how all street users are considered. Jeanette will share good street examples from NZ and around the world, and some key lessons she has learnt over her engineering design career.
